Based on the time you were enrolled, the institution has determined that you have earned more federal aid than has already been disbursed on your behalf. Accordingly, you're entitled to a post-withdrawal disbursement (PWD) of a portion of your Federal Student Aid funds. The amount of the PWD, the type of funding, and how those funds are expected to be disbursed are all indicated above. If unpaid charges are owed to the institution, some or all of these funds may be used to cover those charges and that amount is shown above in the box marked "Title IV Aid Credited to Account". If institutional charges are not owed, some of the PWD may be issued directly to the student (or parent in the case of PLUS loan funds) and is shown in the box marked "Title IV Aid Disbursed Direct to Student".

Some of these funds may represent loan funds and disbursement of these loan funds, either to the institution for outstanding charges or the student /parent, will increase the outstanding principal balance on your loan(s). These amounts, along with any other student loan amounts, must be repaid in accordance with the repayment terms of your federal loan(s).

You may accept or decline all or a portion of the above funding amounts. Because some of these funds may represent loan funds that must be repaid, we must receive your confirmation that you want us to disburse these funds on your behalf.

By signing below I authorize the institution to disburse the funding amounts described above.
